

THE SECOND VOLUME OF THE KEEPER OF DREAMS explores questions of morality refracted through the prisms of dreams, the unlikely, and the surreal. "A House Burning" opens upon a crowd of the disaffected watching the ashes of their home smolder. As they turn away, one-by-one, they find their lives torn asunder – and brought into new meaning. "Time Stops For" follows a stoner man-child stuck in a meta-physical and metaphorical timewarp. Inspired by classic Russian surrealism (Nabokov, Bulgakov) and modern sci-fi and absurdism (Douglas Adams, a Kafkaesque Ray Bradbury) these stories and poems ruminate upon the moral decisions made at the human limit, and beyond.

MATTHEW KEEFER's stories are on the webzine Ducts and the podcast No Extra Words. He runs Music Ravings, an eight-year-old music blog, and has written for Take Magazine and The Newport Mercury. His website is www.mattkeefe.com.
